
Pizza and Documentary: "Coded Bias"

February 25, 2025
13:00 to 14:30
Blue Lecture Room

MIT media researcher Joy Buolamwini's computer science studies uncovered that her face was unrecognizable in many facial recognition systems and she worked to find out why these systems failed. She later found that facial recognition programs only worked when she wore a white mask. She goes on to find out about how else artificial technology can affect minorities.