July 08, 2008

The second edition of the Caixa Catalunya-ICFO Summer Fellows Research Program has started with the participation of 14 students from Spain and other countries. The Summer Fellowships provide a unique opportunity for undergraduate students and their ICFO group leader mentors to engage in approximately twelve weeks of full-time research.

Barcelona, Malaga, Dublin and Turin are some of the cities where summer fellows come from. The students awarded with the fellowships this year are: Alba Alfonso Garcia, Bogna Bylicka, Marco Casale, Marta Castro Lopez, David Mateo Valderrama, Isabel Rubio Guerrero, Damian San Roman Alerigi, Piotr Sleczkowski, Monica Marro Sanchez, David Mc Closkey, Isabel Merchan Galiano, Luisa del Carmen Frias Pliego, Jade Martinez Llinas and Pablo Rosado

Gonzalez.

The Summer Research Fellowship Program, promoted by ICFO together with Caixa Catalunya Obra Social, aims at early exposure to science and research, and early support for outstanding undergraduates. While the research activity is in progress, students may also engage in a training program offering professional and personal development opportunities. The Summer Program covers the basics and applications of different ongoing research topics at ICFO. It consists of lectures by group leaders, post-doctoral researchers and distinguished guest speakers in a broad range of areas, guided visits through ICFO labs, and selected team building activities aimed at helping Summer Fellows become part of the ICFO community and enhancing their networking abilities.
